Dog Psychology

Dog Psychology

1. Nose - For a dog smelling is believing, if a dog cannot smell something, he cannot determine what he is addressing. Puppies are born with their noses open but their eyes and ears are closed.

2. Eyes - About 15 days after birth, puppy eyes will open.

3. Ears - About 20 days after birth, puppy ears start to function.

Calm Assertive Energy

From birth a puppy learns from the mother. The mother's calm-assertive energy is the first energy the puppy experiences.

Balance and Harmony

The calm-assertive energy promotes balance and harmony. From the beginning of their lives, dogs learn to follow a calm-assertive leader. The mother teaches the puppy calm-submission, the natural role of followers. Dogs learn patience and survival from their mother - their first pack leader.

Racer, an example of a calm dog.

Leadership Example

Dog Psychology

By default, the mother is the first pack leader.

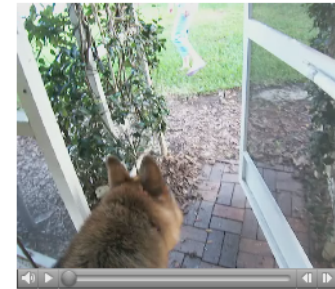

Who will become the new pack leader when the puppy comes home with you?

Dogs have 3 important needs:

1. Dogs need a leader - preferably you, the owner.
2. Dogs need discipline from you as the leader.
3. Dogs need exercise from you as the leader.

Without these needs being addressed, your dog may develop behavior problems.

This is the introductory lesson for the 3 basic needs. More information follows in each of the chapters about Leadership, Discipline, and Exercise.

Basic Needs

Three Basic Needs

Your dog has three critical needs:

- Leadership → The priority of each need is very important. Leadership must come first.
- Discipline → Discipline is second in priority.
- Exercise → Exercise is third and is very important.
